The tournament has raised a total of $64,000 for the Behind the Badge over the last four years.

Highlights of this year's tournament included the participation of over 100 first responders and law-enforcement personnel, as well as musical performances by Seattle R & B band, The Weather Experts; and local singer/songwriter, Jairemie Alexander.

Also on hand to support and add star power to the event were former Seattle Sonic, Slick Watts; former Seahawks, Randall Morris and Charles Young; and former U.W. Husky and All-American linebacker, Antowaine Richardson. Q13 FOX news anchor and host of Washington's Most Wanted, David Rose, served as master of ceremonies, as he has done every year since the tournament's inception. Elite sponsors included Alaska Airlines, Avanti Markets, Directors Mortgage, Kenwood U.S.A, Kibble and Prentice Insurance, Peak Travel, and GeoConex.

"This year's 'Shoot for the Stars' tournament was our most successful to date," said Zetron president and CEO, Ellen O'Hara. "It's very exciting to see the momentum the event continues to gather each year and the enthusiasm with which our community comes out to support it.
